Flexibility

Today, it's heavy work materials; tomorrow, who knows? Maybe camping equipment or mountain bikes? Every day is as unique as you are. So there's a Mazda B-Series to suit your individual load space and body style needs. First, with its class-defining load-box, is the Single Cab. Then, for extra passenger space, there's the Double Cab, with 4 doors and a generous load area. Lastly, there's the ingenious RAP Cab, a new design with the freestyle doors seen on the forthcoming Mazda RX-8, which allows unhindered access to the rear cab area.

Confident and purposeful, the exterior of the new Mazda B-Series has a powerful on-road presence. It's a real sit-up-and-take-notice kind of pick-up, but with a car-like ambience. From the unmistakable Mazda five-point grille to the newly designed multi-reflector headlamps, dynamic wheel arches and rear mudguards to the large chunky tyres; which not only help to give Mazda B-Series its rugged appearance, but also increase ground clearance and improve off-road comfort. And then there's thoughtful touches like chrome door mirrors and outer door handles, sporty alloys and stylish side-steps. Also, on the 4x4 RAP Cab 4-Action, the innovative design includes reverse-hinged rear doors and front-hinged front doors without a central pillar, which allows you and your passengers unrivalled access to the interior. All of which help to give Mazda B-Series its head-turning, fresh, dynamic appearance.

Space

You work to live, not live to work; which is why the Mazda B-Series' versatile design means that at the end of the working week – you're ready to play. You, your family and friends, all benefit from the generous space, refined performance and superior comfort. And if you need to tow a heavy load, the Mazda B-Series range has all the towing capacity you will ever need – over two tonnes!

The Single Cab pick-up can carry at least one tonne in weight, and items up to 2.28 metres long. Whilst the 4x4 Double Cab four-wheel drive models can also each carry at least one tonne in weight, and items up to 1.53 metres in length. And then, there's the RAP Cab, which provides an impressive 1.75-metre load length. In fact, we think Mazda B-Series can handle anything your wildest weekend throws its way.

Who says tough and dependable can't be luxurious and stylish?

With its robust and determined exterior, Mazda B-Series is as hardworking as you would expect from a first-class pick-up. And when you settle into the driver's seat you won't be surprised. You'll find a comfortable car-like interior, with a seat design that's not just supportive, but provides real ride comfort – greatly reducing fatigue on long trips. Journeys in the new lifestyle range are as comfortable as in your family saloon, with outstanding specification, including air conditioning, CD player and even leather upholstery on the top-of-the-range 4-Style. A dynamically styled instrument panel with silver surfaces and blue-faced dials and a tilt-adjustable steering wheel. And to suit your personal tastes, there's also a range of colours and accessories which tailor your vehicle to suit your character.

Although built to tackle the toughest of jobs, you'll be surprised at just how car-like the Mazda B-Series is to drive. All models boast a super-reliable 2.5-litre diesel or turbo diesel engine linked to a smooth five-speed gearbox for relaxed driving. Then there's the independent front and rear suspension, providing a smooth, comfortable ride, even when driving without a load.

When it comes to tackling challenging terrains, the 4x4 models give you the freedom to switch instantly from two- to four-wheel drive. And should the going get too tough, automatic hub locks and a limited-slip differential give you the power to pull yourself out of difficult off-road conditions.
